STRATEGY FEELING FORESIGHT

ABOUT THE GAME

Curling is a highly demanding sport. It requires good strategic thinking combined with a lot of feeling and good forward planning. It is important to develop and implement a strategy with your team so that you can thwart your opponent's strategy.

ABOUT THE ALLEY

The Alley is treated with a special asphalt, making it playable all year round. The rink is located outdoors and in winter, heating elements are installed. However, those who practise curling the right way, you will be warm even in cold temperatures.

There are two lanes available. The curling sticks and the stave are provided.

PLAY RULES

The rules of the game are very simple: two teams face each other. Each player tries to push their curling stick as close as possible to the 'stave' in the centre of the playing area. It is permitted to push the stick of one's own team members closer to the stave or to push a stick of the opposing team out of the playing area. If the stave moves during a push, this is the new relevant position. The game is played in several rounds, the so-called 'Fegen'. The player who comes closest to the puck scores the most points and wins the game.
